Sally is a local wildlife and pet portrait artist. Having grown up on a butterfly farm she has always been passionate about nature. With a BA (Hons) Degree in Scientific Illustration she worked for many years as a freelance illustrator for publishers such as Usborne, Kingfisher and Harper Collins.

As well as producing detailed illustrations for books, Sally has developed a looser more energetic style, adding extra vibrancy to her larger wildlife art.

She has also recently completed a series of children's murals at hospitals in Southampton and Portsmouth.

Nature is Sally's constant source of inspiration. She lives near Winchester, with her husband and two young children who have also caught the nature bug.

“In an age when so much wildlife is threatened - from large mammals through to tiny insects - I am passionate about highlighting and celebrating the wonder and beauty of animals and plants through art.”
