

Painting natural textures in acrylic with Morgane Antoine £57 per person

Wild animals are a fascinating subject of study for artists. But their incredible diversity of habitats is also a wonderful challenge.

A strong composition with the right environment is often the key to a good wildlife painting regardless of the subject.

So if you would like to learn how to paint and mimic the textures of Nature in acrylic this workshop is for you!

With easy step by step demonstrations, you will discover how to create realistic background elements for your wildlife subjects. Rock, snow, grass or sand will hold no secrets for you at the end of the workshop and you will learn how some simple tools can help you achieve incredible results!

This workshop is suitable for all levels and the techniques covered during the class can be applied to many other subjects.

All material is provided; just bring an apron or a smock to protect your clothes (strongly advised!).
